POSITION THAT IS HARMFUL

Habit of Sitting Cross-Legged Is Declared to Be Dangerous to the Health of the Body.

Full 80 per cent. of the men and women who travel in the trains and street cars sit cross-legged, and this habit is responsible for many ills, according to a prominent London physician. The prime objection against this habit, he says, is that the return flow of blood from the leg is stopped at the knee, the result being that the veins in the leg swell up. All the weight is thrown on one side of the body, and the under leg goes to sleep, owing to the pressure put on the sciatic nerve. The body should be equally balanced. Then there is another danger. Too much crossing of the legs is sure to bring lopsidedness. Let the legs rest limply. In that way the muscles become eased while the flow into and the return of blood from the legs is naturally done and the body is equally balanced.

Walnuts as Food.

A London medical journal recently published some interesting facts concerning walnuts as foods. According to this authority, "thirty large walnut kernels contain as much food value as two and three-quarters pounds of lean beef." With beef worth approximately 20 cents a pound, this means that each walnut is worth about two cents as a food product as compared with beef. That these facts will greatly encourage the production and consumption of walnuts is hardly to be expected. There is some consolation, however, in the thought that when meat has become a luxury to be indulged only by the rich, the general consumer can keep his dinner very well—somewhat like Peter Pumpkin-eater's wife—in a walnut shell.

Bert Was "Game."

Bert Lichtenstern left the dice box to wait upon the prosperous-looking citizen, who stood before the case where the higher-priced cigars reposed.

The customer pointed to a 25-cent straight brand and then inquired: "Do you take chicken feed?"

"Certainly," said the obliging Bert, as he handed out the cigars.

The customer took two, lighted one and then drew from his pocket a handful of wheat, which he deposited on the show case.

Without a smile, Lichtenstern gathered up the chicken feed and rang up 50 cents on the cash register—without cracking a smile.

Methods of the Best Shot.

No marksman ever holds a rifle "as solidly as a rock." He may think he does, but Arms and the Man insists that the best shot gives merely the "necessary impulse to the trigger while the rifle is moving in the right direction"—that is, when he takes deliberate aim. The snap-shooter works apparently by a sort of instinct. Firing successfully at a running deer through woods and over broken ground implies a knack like that of thrusting one's finger toward an indicated object.
